Afeef in Action!

Afeef and the gang have not taken their positions at boys' state lightly. Today was a busy day for those at the Public Board office. They tackled a few bills, are in the middle of a heated dispute between the house and the senate and did the road to road show.

Their first item of business today was their road to road show. Going all through out Boys' State, making stops at the Police Academy, various cities and counties, and other sorts of places, Afeef and the gang spread the message of additional funding. If any project or business needs additional funding all they need to do is write a piece of legislation stating: What they need the money for, how much, and why they feel they deserve the money over top of the other projects.

Also in the gang's schedule today was the passing of a bill. Their first bill was one that reduced the amount of frivolous lawsuits and dealt with the rights of teenagers currently serving in the military.

Any delegate who is going to Governor's Honors Academy and would like to know who else is going, please drop a note by the Newspaper Headquarters in Harrison Cottage and we will prepare a list.

He is honored to serve as President of the Senate. He has a high interest and respect for the legislative branch of government and his position fits him well. He says he is lucky to have found such a strong fit.

MANCHIN speaks at MBS

Mountaineer Boys' State was greatly honored to have a governor other than Robbie Herron or Afeef "Chocolate Thunder" Ahmed. West Virginia Governor Joseph Manchin graced us with our presence for a speech after the formal review on Wednesday evening. Governor Manchin was born August 24, 1947 in Farmington, West Virginia, where he graduated from Farmington High School. He later graduated from West Virginia University. Sadly, he never attended Boys' State, but he wished that he would have has the immense honor. In his personal life, Governor Manchin is a proud husband, father, and grandfather. Also, as everyone could tell, he is one of the most proud West Virginians.

The governor spoke on a variety of not only political and state topics, but topics on pride and hard work. He spoke about how he traveled to Japan recently and told the citizens all the wonderful achievements and how special West Virginia is. He also described to us how West Virginia was one of the most under appreciated states in America. Even though we have the most envied, beautiful natural surroundings, some of the most proud people in the United States, and a number of other advantages, West Virginia winds up incorrectly at the bottom of the good lists and at the top of the bad.

He hopes to change this stereotype. He wants to instill pride in those who have lost it. He also wants to help the large amount of West Virginians without running water and approximately forty percent of citizens with sanitation. Finally, he hopes to not only promote higher education but also promote better body image and health. His entire speech was full of inspiration and high moral. We all surely deeply appreciated he governor's attendance.

I had the distinct honor to interview the governor. Unfortunately, though, due to the oncoming sunset, he had to leave before I could really go in depth. Although, he did leave us with one very important message: "It's your time, and you need to step forward now, be a leader, and take action. It is your time."

The governor also said that he deeply enjoyed the formal review and the band and choir. Hopefully everyone took something away from this great man. Finally, remember his words the next time someone degrades the name of West Virginia: "We are the envy of the world, they just don't know it yet."

SMOOTH CRIMINAL

The Boy's State police and conservation officers graduated Wednesday at noon and were soon in full force. Within less than half an hour of their graduation, an especially ambitious law enforcement official, Joseph Walden of Panhandle, made the first arrest of the week. Austin Maynard, also of Panhandle, was taken into custody shortly after 12:30, Wednesday for multiple offenses.

"I don't feel much different, but now the magistrates will have something to do," Maynard said when questioned on his feeling about the arrest.

Mr. Maynard was arrested for operating a vehicle without a license, speeding, reckless driving, and resisting arrest.

In a final statement from Maynard, he commented on being the first Boy's Stater arrested, "Yeah, it's a good title to have." Austin Maynard is awaiting trial in Panhandle County.

their life in a good, truthful way that fits their desires and passions. That is the true road to happiness.

You know him. You love him. He spoke at your Thursday dinner. It is Tony Caridi, the voice of the Mountaineers. Tony spoke to Mountaineer Boy's State on hard work. He opened his speech saying that just because you are smart, does not mean you'll be successful in life. He said that if intelligence or even extreme talent was the biggest factor to success, then how did the West Virginia University basketball team, who has not been this successful since 1959, go so far this season with none of the high ranking players on their team? He answered that in two words: hard work. He would prefer someone less intelligent or talented if they are determined. Passion was his second topic. If you do not have the passion for an occupation, you very well might be miserable for the rest of your life. "You need to find the one thing you would do for free, and make it your life's work," he said. Finally, he mentioned that another key to success is integrity. If you lack integrity, you will have to cover up for your actions over and over. Whether it is in high school, business, or relationships, you should tell truth at first so it does not haunt you afterward. Tony Caridi wants everyone to live

Future Leaders of this Country

After the general Election one of the young men that Post 73 sent to Boys' State told me he was just going to be an ordinary citizen at Boys' State. I am not sure if he realized that this country was built and is still being built by the ordinary citizen. The ordinary citizen is the one that fought to defend and is still defending this country. The ordinary citizen is the one that wrote the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States of America. An ordinary citizen is the person who is the farmer, preacher, grocery storeowner or clerk, doctor, nurse, housewife, postman/woman, a person who owns a business or works for a business owner no matter what the business is. No matter who you are or what you do, you are THAT ordinary citizen. You are the one who is going to help continue to build this country. The men and women who helped to build this country were Christians and understood that we needed to remember and be involved with the church. They knew we had to have an education. They understood that it takes the ordinary person to be involved at the city, county, state and national level. It is not necessarily the rich person but also the person who is employed by someone, owns a small business or is a housewife. We are all "that ordinary person". We are what has built and will continue to build this country. Please remember where you have come from and where we need to go for this country to survive and continue to be the country that our forefathers wanted it to be. You are the one who is going to lead this country in the future.

Order in the Court!

Court is in, and we have felons among us. Throughout Wednesday and Thursday, Boy's State tested their legal ability in mock trials throughout the camp. Two counties partnered up and went through realistic hearings from the witnesses to the irking paper work. Panhandle and Braxton took part in the case "Mountaineer Boy's State vs. Zack Kuiken" Wednesday afternoon which led with many interesting turns.

The court began with the entering of the judge, jury selection made of Braxton citizens, oaths, and other technicalities. Shortly after, though, it became more interesting. As the prosecution opened with their witnesses, Zack Kuiken, who was accused of drunk driving, seemed destined to be convicted guilty. The attorneys questioned witnesses, looking for the evidence that would prove his stumbling, smell of alcohol, and disorientation to be caused by his third DUI offense. The prosecution claimed this to be caused from alcohol consumption, but the defense claimed this to be due to a schizophrenic mind alteration due to a concussion and a busted knee. After questioning six witnesses, the jury left to decide Kuiken's fate.

During the break, Ms. Bridget Furbe complemented the nearly talent of Panhandle's court system. She did comment on some of the witnesses' impromptu skills and the defendant's shy persona.

When the court reconvened from the recess, they found Zack Kuiken not guilty of all charges. Even with the sometimes dull parts, the badgering of witnesses and arguing among the attorneys made the entire event worthwhile. Hopefully the rest of the mock trials went as well as Panhandle's.

Judge Maxwell and friends deliver speeches

A forty-year veteran of the bench, the Honorable Robert Maxwell served as speaker and emcee for the assembly. Mr. Maxwell serves as a Federal Judge, just two steps below a Supreme Court Judge. I think he deserves brush his shoulder and pop his collar. But anyway, this man did an excellent job of presenting his information and introducing the other speakers, including the second best prosecuting attorney in Randolph County, his son. These men were not ordinary Joes, even compared to all the speakers we've had tonight. Some of them may not have been publicly elected to the positions, but they still are at the head of the state in the areas of work. Thank you men for coming tonight and sharing your points on how we will be able to lead this state to prosperity.
