First Boy's State

By Roy M. Pritchard

THE first Boy's State was held at Jackson's Mill from May 31 to June 6, 1936, over 52 years ago. Prior to this, arrangements were made for a maximum of 400 boys to attend this Mountaineer Boy's State Camp.

W. G. Stathers, of Clarksburg, was state commander of the American Legion, who was the sponsor. H. L. Card, of Springfield, Illinois, was the Dean of Councillors. Following conferences with Mr. Stathers, W. H. Kendrick, director of the Mill, R. Worth Shumaker of Buckhannon, and others, Mr. Card went to Charleston to study the State Government. The Camp was to be modeled after the state government.

The camp was organized into nine counties and eighteen cities. Counties were Webster, Marion, Randolph, Monroe, Calhoun, Gilmer, Lewis, Harrison and Upshur. The cities were as follows: Webster Springs, Wheeling, Fairmont, Morgantown, Elkins, Keyser, Union, Huntington, Grantsville, Bluefield, Glenville, Beckley, Weston, Weirton, Clarksburg, Charleston, Buckhannon and Parkersburg.

There were two parties, in the Camp, the Nationalists and the Federalists. These parties held conventions and made nominations, just like the big boys do. Then, elections were held. The Nationalist party candidate for Governor was Leslie Reed, of Clarksburg. The Federalist candidate for Governor was Orin Conaway, of Sistersville. There were candidates for all state, county and city offices, too numerous to mention here. This writer appeared on the ballot for Mayor of Clarksburg. Results of the election was 243 for Reed, as Governor, and 67 for Conaway.

Elective officials of the Boy's State were sworn in by the real Governor, H. Guy Kump. Kump came to give a talk on how the West Virginia government operates.

Governor Kump told the Boy Staters to "Pay as you go — public debt, like private debt, must be paid. We do not wish to live at the expense of future generations — a government cannot support its citizens; the citizen must support the government. No self-respecting citizen desires to have government do for him that which he could do for himself. Government is what citizenship makes it."

The Staff of Directors, for the first West Virginia Boy's State, sponsored by the American Legion, were:

William Flint, Buckhannon, past Department Chaplain; Miss Thelma King, advisor in Civics, for the State; H. L. Card, Dean of Counsellors and Secy., Illinois Boy's State Assn.; R. Worth Shumaker, Buckhannon, General Chairman; Miss Bardette Fenster, Weston, State Nurse; David D. Hicks, State Recreational Director WPA, Charleston; R. H. Jameson, Coach, Lincoln Jr. High School, Charleston; John Stewart, Spencer High School;

Paul Workman, Clendenin High School; Dr. R. H. Paden, Supt. West Va. Training School, St. Marys; Hollans Worth, Welch High School.

J. H. Robinson, Educational Advisor, CCC Camp, Richwood; Omer Godden, Educational Advisor, CCC Camp Seneca, Huntersville; Stanley Hall, Glenville High School; R. L. Bland, Jr., Weston; Allen Simmons, Moundsville, Dept. Americanism Chairman; Edward McGrail, Charleston, Dept. Adjutant; Major L. B. Harris, Weston; Russell Thom, Asst. Coach, Lincoln Jr. High School, Charleston; Dr. R. J. Vassar, Weston, Chairman SAL Committee; Lt. Clark, State Police, Elkins; Ed R. Hartman, Holliday's Cove.

Boy's State Governor, Leslie Reed, of Clarksburg, was a 1936 graduate of Washington Irving High School.

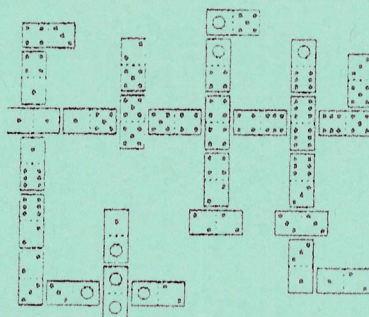

The busy week was filled with educational and athletic activities. Many noted speakers were fitted into the full schedules. One item of note was the arrest of Attorney General Homer A. Holt. Holt, in company of his wife, was entering the Camp, when newly appointed police officers stopped his car and gave him a ticket. He was charged with crossing a dangerous intersection without taking proper precaution. He retained Orin Conaway, of Sistersville, as his attorney, and posted two cigars, for bond. Conaway smoked the cigars and was arrested for destroying property held for possible county use. "Governor" Reed gave Holt a pardon. Holt later spoke to the Boy's State campers at an assembly time.

This writer was fortunate to have attended the first Boy's State of West Virginia. As a member of the Clarksburg Boy Scout Troops 25 and 26, American Legion sponsored, Drum and Bugle Corp., I was the State Bugler and still have the Merit Award Certificate. Not too many were happy with Reveille, but they sure turned out for Mass Call. Not for the quality of my music, but for the excellent Jackson Mill meals.

HEADQUARTERS STAFF (WELL-BREAD)

The Headquarters Staff received a pleasant surprise when Pat McCulloch delivered a box containing three large loaves of homemade bread. Pat's Mom, Diane, baked the low calorie loaves of fruitcake (with orange peeling and other fruit parts), lemon poppy seed, and orange flavored bread mixes.

The Headquarters Staff is very appreciative and would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch for their time and interest in Boys' State. We would also like to thank their son, Pat, for his dedication to the success of the Boys' State Program.

A special thanks goes to Pat's family for their donation to the Boys' State Program. They are greatly appreciated.

Boys State trains W.Va.'s leaders

The American Legion teaches people how to operate democracy

THE American Legion believes there is no better way to assure the survival of our republic than to train our young people in the ideals and objectives of American government and politics. By teaching youth to understand and appreciate the basic principles involved in the successful management of a democratic society, the organization believes we can keep America strong and ensure freedom for future generations. These are the long-standing objectives of the popular American Legion Boys State, which is having its annual summer session this week at Jackson's Mill. More than 100 young men have registered for the 61st anniversary of West Virginia's camp. Administrator Bob Stein of Whitesville said Boys State camps exist all over the United States, but West Virginia's camp is the second oldest in the nation, beat out only by Illinois. "And that was only about a year," said Stein, who has been involved with the camp for 40 years. The popular summer camp does not emphasize classroom lectures or textbook learning. Rather, it emphasizes participation and personal experience in trying to operate a model state, complete with its governing bodies and elected public officials. Every Boys State operates under a two-party system, with instruction provided in the organization and operation of political parties at different levels of government. Those attending get to participate in temporary roles as government leaders. When the boys first arrive, Stein said, they are assigned to either the nationalist or federalist party. They each file for an office the first night and then have party caucuses the second night. Next comes an election. The next day features a speech by the outgoing governor of Boys State. Then the new governor is sworn into office. Next comes a legislative session by those elected at the camp. Some state officials and real legislators will visit Jackson's Mill this week to assist in the process. Stein said every boy attending the camp is elected or appointed to some public office either at the statewide or local level. Rhododendron Girls State will also be held this month. Many West Virginians who became active in local and state government got their first taste of politics by attending Boys State as teenagers. Stein said West Virginia Congressmen Bob Wise and Nick Rahall, who plan to visit the camp this week, both attended Boys State as teenagers. Hoppy Shores, a member of the Kanawha County Commission, attended Boys State also. "In fact, Hoppy was my governor in 1949 at the camp," recalled Stein. Wise says he has never forgotten Boys State. "That's where I lost my first campaign. I ran for governor there and didn't win," he said. "But I was really impressed with the boy who beat me. I always remembered his statement that education is the only passport for poverty. In fact, I have applied that to my thinking ever since then. "I try to go back every year, because it is one of the single most impressive experiences in my life," said the congressman. "It teaches you how you can work within the system. We all came in as strangers, but became bonded by the end of the week." Hoppy Shores also vividly remembers Boys State, though many years have passed. "It was a great experience. It teaches you about county and state governments and why you should take part in them, even at a young age." He recalled a sad note, though. "I went to the 50th anniversary of Boys State here and learned that 20 percent of our young governors elected at the camp had been killed in car wrecks. I was shocked. "However, it inspired me to get involved with government and it did the same for many others," said Shores. Gov. Cecil Underwood is scheduled to speak at the camp at 2 p.m. Thursday, said Stein. Among those also scheduled to stop by the camp this week, he added, are West Virginia University President David Hardesty, state Auditor Glen Gainer III, Agriculture Commissioner Gus Douglass, state Treasurer John Perdue, Secretary of State Ken Hechler and U.S. Navy Admiral Joseph Lopez. Hats off to the American Legion for a constructive youth program that has survived for many years and has helped improve our state.

He received the West Virginia University Vandalia Award and Professional of the Year Award in 1996. He is also a West Virginia School of Medicine outstanding alumnus.

This is Dr. Morgan's first year on staff at Boys' State. He attended Boys' State 57 years ago as a citizen from Kingwood. He is pleased to see it has only changed for the better.

OUR ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATORS

At the request of Principal Art Rezzonico, Kenny Legg began his long tenure as a Boys' State staff member. He began in 1960 as a counselor in Lewis Cottage, and the following year his cabin won the ever-coveted Fuggitt Award. After his second year, he began working for the headquarters' staff.

Former administrator, Tommy Jones, asked him to evaluate the instructional program. After this evaluation, he became the supervisor of this program and has since procured the instructors for Boys' State.

Among other responsibilities, he supervises and serves as master of ceremonies for the talent show scheduled for the last evening of the week. He has developed this program in order to give the citizens the opportunity to share with others a particular talent they may have. Legg also wanted the time during the last evening to be used in a worthy fashion.

Legg stated, "The Boys' State program sets itself apart from the ordinary and in many respects, by molding young men who are going to be involved in perpetuating the destiny of this great state. I am proud to be a part of that movement."

Currently, he serves as the Executive Secretary of the West Virginia School Service Personnel Association which is comprised of over 10,000 teacher aides, transportation employees (bus operators), cooks, custodians, maintenance, and office personnel.

A MBS citizen in 1953, Jim Riffle has demonstrated the love and dedication needed to make this program a success. He has served on the Staff here for 44 years, and for the past 20 years, has served as an assistant administrator to longtime friend, Bob Stine.

A West Virginia native (Weston), Riffle graduated and taught at WVU, with a Master's Degree in Safety Education. He was the academic counselor at Texas Tech University, and left there to write the safety curriculum at Glenville State College, where he also taught.

Currently, he is the Senior Operator for Ultimate Ride Limousine Service in Philadelphia, where he lives with his adopted son, Jose.

Although there have been several long-term supporters of the MBS program, very few can match the persistence and determination of Riffle. However, he credits the abilities and dedication of the staff members for the success of this program.

Riffle concludes, "I really like the idea of helping people and my experience has been very rewarding. The friendships I've made here are ones I'll never forget."

NORTHERN PANHANDLE

Hub of the Panhandle

Wheeling is the historical and commercial hub of the Northern Panhandle. From its earliest days as a pre-Revolutionary outpost and stop along the National Road's path to the western frontier, to its 18th and 19th century role as a port of entry, through its boom and bust Victorian Era as the center of glass, steel and textiles, Wheeling has preserved and persevered.

Independence Hall in downtown Wheeling served as an 18th and 19th century customs house, as the capitol of the Restored Government of Western Virginia, and later as the state capitol for the new state of West Virginia. Today, it is a center for art and a showcase for the state's history, and is part of The Civil War Discovery Trail.

ugging the Ohio River, the six-county area of the Northern Panhandle remembers its history: the ancient Adena people who built a conical mound more than 2,000 years ago; the pioneer families and adventurers making their way west along the National Road; the boom that spawned extravagant Victorian homes in Wheeling and Sistersville.

Today, that history melds with the new Northern Panhandle, as exciting as those days long past, but now filled with the pleasures of today: great country music, wonderful family resorts and parks, outdoor adventure on the rivers, arts and culture, gracious dining and accommodations.

Mounds of Fun

Fifteen minutes south of Wheeling, Moundsville's first residents came early and left a monument to their culture whose longevity rivals any in antiquity.

In the region at least 15,000 years ago, the Adena culture's crowning achievement is the Grave Creek Mound. The largest conical burial mound in the Americas at 69 feet high and 900 feet in circumference at the base, it was built about 2,000 years ago from an estimated 60,000 tons of earth—about three million baskets full of dirt!

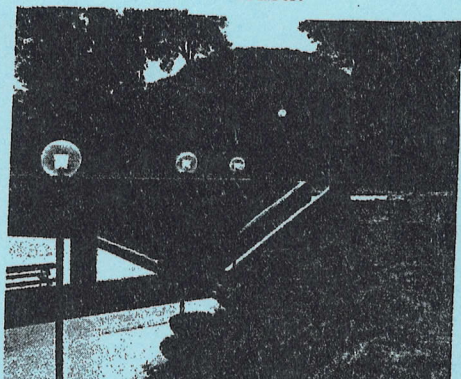

In Grave Creek Mound State Park, adjacent to the burial mound, the Delf Norona Museum displays artifacts of the Adena period, about 1,000 BC to beyond 1 AD.

Moundsville is also home to the famous West Virginia Penitentiary, now closed to prisoners but open for tours. At the prison, constructed in the Civil War era, you can witness what life was like for the inmates. In Alamo Cell Block, the worst of the inmates were housed 22 hours a day. Elsewhere, inmates painted beautiful murals on the walls to help pass the time.

Country or Classical

Wheeling is a country music destination. One of America's best known radio stations, WWVA, broadcasts Jamboree USA every weekend. The live show features top names and up-and-coming performers on the stage of the Capitol Music Hall.

The Capitol Music Hall also is home to the Wheeling Symphony. A highly acclaimed metropolitan class orchestra, the Symphony presents both classical and pops concert series, often with renowned classical, popular and jazz artists.

For ancient history fans, the Adena Burial Mound in Moundsville is the place to go.

Sportsman's Paradise

Public hunting and fishing areas are easily accessible throughout the Northern Panhandle and are regularly stocked with bass, trout, northern pike and channel catfish. Wild geese and ducks flourish on the Ohio River and its tributaries. And while the fish and fowl are plentiful, the crowds are not.

If you're an angler, head to New Martinsville's Hannibal Locks & Dam and its public fishing pier on the Ohio River. The churning waters support an amazing variety of game fish. A paved access road and walkways accessible to people with disabilities make this spot perfect for a family fishing adventure.

The lush 9,229 acres of the Lewis Wetzel Wildlife Management Area are a paradise for sportsmen. Whitetail deer, wild turkey, a wide variety of small game and public campsites abound. Near Middlebourne, Middle Island Creek offers canoeing, camping and fishing. More river than creek, it supports largemouth bass, channel catfish and other species.

Also nearby, the Jug and Conaway Lake Wildlife Management areas provide outstanding opportunities for anglers.
